

All our hand soaps are made with a vegetable derived soap base, made using natural oatmeal and nourishing shea butter so its vegan friendly. As our products are hand poured and detailed, there will be natural variation between each item, making each one uniquely yours. To get the most out of your soap, follow our handy tips below:

1. Use a soap dish that offers proper drainage so the soap can dry between uses. A slatted wood or bamboo soap dish is ideal because it wicks water away from the soap, allowing the soap to dry properly. Alternatively, a “soap saver” (an oval disk with raised nubs) placed in the bottom of your favourite soap dish should keep it high and dry and mighty.
2. If you’re not going to use your soap immediately, then make sure to store it in a well-ventilated container and out of direct sunlight, as natural ingredient colours may fade. Handmade natural soaps are high in natural glycerin and vegetable oils; non-ventilated storage may result in a “weepy” or less than fresh soap! Ideally, don’t store your soaps in the bathroom! A cool and dry place like a linen cupboard is ideal and adds a lovely little fragrance to your linens.
3. Store different fragrances separately! The essential oils in handcrafted soaps vary in dominance and mellow over time at different rates. Storing a lavender (dominant) scent with a citrus (mild) scent may result in the citrus scent taking on a lavender aroma. Even under the best conditions, citrus scents tend to mellow more quickly than other scents.
